NEWPORT, R. I.

THE NEWPORT MERCURY was established in June, 1858, and is now in its one hundred and twenty-fifth year. It is the oldest newspaper in the United States, with less than half a dozen exceptions, the oldest printed in the English language. It is a large quarto weekly of fifty-six columns, with an interesting reading matter, local, state, and general news, well-selected miscellany and a valuable "Advertiser" and household department, including so many households in this and other states, the limited space given to advertising is very valuable to business men.

Local Matters.

ASSAULTED WITH STONES.

A Man Found Disabled on the Beach.

Thursday morning between 2 and 3 o'clock a young man was engaged in putting out the lights on the hill, in was approached by two men who stated that there was a man, a companion of theirs, lying on the beach and they feared he was dead. The officer immediately went with the two men to the place indicated, and found Thomas Leary lying on the platform near Robert Goff's bathing house in an insensible condition with a severe wound on the side of his head. The officer then telephoned to police headquarters for a conveyance to remove the man, and officer Stevens hastened to Stewart's stable where he procured a wagon and drove directly to the beach. The two men who had first noticed officer Carr were in waiting and asked the officers in putting Leary in the wagon, when they together with officer Stevens drove to the hospital where Leary was left for treatment. The two men then went to the Station House and told their story. They said that they and Leary were employed on the Newport Waterworks and that they were on their way to the works when they sat down on the bank at the side of the road near the beach to rest, while sitting there a party of ten or a dozen common men came along and one of them (waterworks men) asked one of the coachmen for a match when they alleged, the coachman began to assault them with stones etc. They then started to run which Leary refused to do, calling out to his flying companions that "No soldier would run from a crowd like this; I'm going to walk." He then beheld the Powder house and saw Leary knocked down, after which the coachmen retired on to the lawn in front of the Chandler villa. The men then came from their hiding place and picked Leary up from the mud where he had fallen, removed him to the platform, and placing some straw under his head left him while they went to find an officer. These men seem to tell a pretty straight story, and as the officer saw a party of coachmen going down the road at about the time these men say the assault occurred, it is generally believed.

"HE WANTED TO BUY A WATCH."

One of Our Jewelers Victimised.

About ten minutes past 7 o'clock Wednesday evening a man apparently about 38 or 40 years old entered the jewelry store of Mr. E. O. Blain on Thames-st. and wanted to buy a watch. Mr. Blain produced quite a collection of time keepers, and after carefully examining several, the man found one that seemed to suit him. Finally after some discussion the accommodating merchant agreed to attach a gold plated chain with a charm to the watch and let him have the whole for $22. This seemed to satisfy the man and he produced a check for $24.75 in payment, but informed Mr. Blain that if he had any objection to taking a check he would "come in again tomorrow." Mr. Blain had no objection, however, and the man took the jewelry and $2.75 in change and Mr. Blain took the check. The check was for $24.75 made payable to Wm. J. Bennett and purported to be signed by Lawrence Coggeshall. Subsequently the check was pronounced a forgery, and Mr. Blain acknowledges himself victimised. The man was dressed in a dark blue suit with brass buttons and claimed to be a petty officer on board the Portsmouth. It has since been learned that this man went to one or two places along the street and tried to get the check cashed previous to going to Mr. Blain's.

Robert Hare Powell.

Robert Hare Powell, of Philadelphia, a well known and leading operator in bituminous coal and manufacturer of iron, died suddenly on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, on the Huntington and Broad Top Railroad, in Bedford county, Pa. Mr. Powell was a son of Colonel John Hare Powell, of Philadelphia, and was born in October, 1825, in West Philadelphia. He was one of the first bituminous coal operators in Pennsylvania, and was the pioneer in developing the Broad Top coal fields. He introduced this coal into the market of the Eastern seaboard when there was hardly such a thing known as semi-bituminous coal. He then went to the Clearfield region where that district was in its infancy and opened up mines there. Probably 10,000 persons in one way or another are supported by the enterprises which this worthy citizen originated and carried to successful completion.

He was a brother of the Hon. Samuel Powell and Col. John Hare Powell of this city.

SUMMER MEETING.

Three Days' Racing at Aquidneck Park—Excellent Weather and Fine Trotting—$1800 Given in Prizes.

The three days' summer meeting at Aquidneck Park opened Tuesday. $1800 was offered in purses and a large number of entries were made, including some of the best known horses in the country. The weather looked a little threatening Tuesday morning, but when the race was called at 2 o'clock it had cleared up and the best of weather prevailed throughout the three days. The track was in excellent condition and the trotting was the best ever witnessed on this island. Owing to the managers being unable to make satisfactory arrangements with the Old Colony Company to stop certain trains at the Park the attendance was not as large as the occasion merited, still there was a fair attendance each day. Following are the summaries:

Poetry.

Praxiteles and Phryne.

BY W. W. STORY.

A thousand silent years ago,
The twilight faint and pale
Was drawing on the sunset glow
Its soft and shadowy veil.

When from his work the sculptor staid
His hand, and turned to see
Who stood beside him half in shade,
Said with a sigh, "Thy done."

"Phryne, thy human lips shall pale,
Thy rounded limbs decay,
Nor love nor prayers can aught avail
To bid thy beauty stay;

But then thy smile for centuries
On marble lips shall live—
For art can grant what love denies,
And fix the fugitive.

Sad thought! nor age nor death shall fade
The youth of this cold bust;
When the quick brain and hand that made,
And then and I am dust.

When all our hopes and fears are dead,
And both our hearts are cold,
And love is like a tune that's played,
And life a tale that's told,

This countess of centuries alone,
That no sweet blush can warm,
The same enchanting look shall own,
The same enchanting form.

And there upon that silent face
Shall unborn ages see
Perennial youth, perennial grace,
And sealed eternity.

And strangers, when we sleep in peace,
Shall say, not quite unmoved,
"So smiled upon Praxiteles
The Phryne whom he loved."

Trip Lightly.

Trip lightly over trouble,
Trip lightly over wrong,
We only make grief double,
By dwelling on it long.

Why clasp we a hand so tightly?
Why cling to a blossom dead?
Why cling to forms unlovely?
Why not seek joy instead?

Trip lightly over sorrow,
Though all the ways be dark,
The sun may shine to-morrow,
And gaily sing the lark.

Fate hoves have not departed,
Though roses may have fled,
Then never be downhearted,
But look for joy instead.

Trip lightly over sadness,
Stand not to rail at doom,
We're pests to string of gladness,
On this side of the tomb;

Whist stars are nightly shining,
And the heaven is over head,
Encourage not repining,
But look for joy instead.

Selected Tale.

THE DISAPPOINTED WIFE.

Mrs. Rolf glanced complacently over her tea table, and well she might, for it was pretty and wholesome enough to please the most fastidious. "Richard will be sure to say something pleasant," she thought. She felt that it had been a long time since he had remembered that he had a wife dependent on him for "the small, sweet courtesies of life." She had hurried her tea that she might walk to the gate to meet him, but he did not seem to appreciate her effort, and she might as well have rested her aching feet.

"How cold and easy you women seem to take life," he said. "I wish I could have an easy time of it."—From his tone you might have thought that it was he who had not rested five minutes all day, and been up with a sick child half the night. His wife took his arm, but he did not notice it.

"I do wish you would not wear those horrid old calicoes, Nell! They look so outlandish! There is Harry crying again! Seems to me he keeps it up night and day. I like a little peace when I come home. Lucky for you that I don't go to the saloons like some men!"

"Well, it is just as lucky for you that I do not get drunk like some women," she responded, as she took the crying child.

"He fell and bumped his head on the sofa," said young Nora. She had been playing with the little fellow, who was not fit to be fussed yet, although he had been crowded out of his place as "the baby" by wee Jessie. "As one whom his mother comforted," he was soon ready for a supper and as cheerful as if nothing had happened.

Mr. Rolf looked at the tea table with a dissatisfied air.

"Why don't we have dried beef any more?" he said.

"I thought you were tired of that and would like a change, so I got a tongue. I am sure you will like it if you only try it; but I will get you the beef."

"Oh, don't take the trouble," he said, as she went into the pantry. "It does not matter what I eat."

The wife, who was also cook and waiter, brought a plate of nicely shaved beef, but he did not taste it, but ate heartily of the tongue.

"I saw Mrs. Baldwin to-day," he said, as he took a third slice and his wife handed him his second cup of tea. "It is wonderful how she keeps her good looks! She does not look a day older than she did ten years ago."

"They say Mr. Baldwin is very careful of her," said Mrs. Rolf, who looked at least two years older, now, than when she met her husband at the gate a few minutes before.

"He never lets her have any care of the children nights, but gets up himself if they need anything, and he does all the marketing and saves her in every way. He is very proud of her, they say, and tries to preserve her good looks."

"Well, she is a woman to be proud of," said the thoughtful husband, in a tone that implied that he knew of no other woman half so deserving.

He buttered his excellent homemade bread in silence, evidently thinking of the handsome, well-dressed woman who had left her children of three and five years old with the girl, and who dressed and went out shopping as leisurely as if she had not a care in the world. Her delicate silk was very becoming. The white hat, with its easily lace and plume, set off her pretty face to advantage, and the dainty accessories of her toilet indicated a well-filled purse as well as good taste.

"I do wish, Nell, that you would take more pains to fix up. I am fairly ashamed to have you come into the store."

"I will try and not shame you again," she said, as her face flushed hotly, "but you know, Richard, that there is a great difference between the Baldwin's circumstances and ours. She keeps a girl to do her work, and gives most of her sewing out, and has only two children, while I have four; and these little ones who have to be taken up so often are pretty hard on my fixing up much, for they do spoil one's clothes dreadfully. I do my work and see to the children. I do not know when I should wear nice clothes, if I had over so many, especially as I never go on fashionable shopping, nor dawdle around whole afternoons prying things that I never think of buying. When I must have something from the store, I slip into my duster and go after it, and then come home and go to work again. I am always tidy, at least, and that is considerable."

"Well, you did not seem so very much fatigued when you came humming down to the gate. But I suppose you're just about gone," and there was a positive sneer in his tones now. "I wish you could manage as mother does. It seems to me that when I have to work so hard for you and the children, you need not grieve about your little work."

"Did you ever hear me complain of my work? I think I ought to do it, and I am glad that I can; but it does not seem right for you to expect me to do as well as those who have nothing to do. I cannot get my work all done up in the morning, for I have to see to the children all the time, and there is ten to get and the dishes to wash, and after that the children are to be bathed and put to bed. I am sure that my dress is suitable for such work."

"I should think Mrs. Stoner had as much work as you have, yet I never see her dressed so plainly."

"Oh, dear no, the poor dear thing would have a fit if she had to wear a plain calico. I was there yesterday at their tea time, and she looked like a ghost, and could hardly breathe for the pain in her side. But she had made three kinds of cake, two pies, a gallon of preserves, and had swept her house from top to bottom. Her hair was curled and frizzed and puffed and she had on her percale dress, all curled and fluted, which she said she worked at day before until she was ready to drop. Her face was powdered and her rings sparkled, and, if she had not groaned so with pain, you might have enjoyed looking at her. But if I did as she does, you'd call me—well, anything except smart. Mr. Stoner went into the pantry and picked up his supper, and gave the children enough preserves and cake to make them all sick. No wonder they are peevish and ailing all the time. Then he went for the doctor, who said she was tired out, and needed rest; but she has been making her Grace a dress to-day, and the tucks and puffs and ruffles are a sight to behold. I saw she ought to dress less, and live more plainly, and then she wouldn't have to work so hard. They owe the doctor over a hundred dollars now, and I guess you wouldn't like that very well, would you?"

"Well, who cares for what Mrs. Stoner does, anyway? Doesn't that extra tart belong to me?"

"They are excellent, are they not?" said Mrs. Rolf, as she passed the plate.

"Oh, they'll do, but they do not amount to much. I should think you could use your time better than making such fooleries. Jelly costs something, too, when fruit is so high, and my mother never made any such nonsense."

He had eaten the last crumb of the delicate morsel, and looked at the plate as if he wished there was another for him.

"Well, don't let the extravagance worry you," said the wife. "The paste was some left from a pie I made for dinner, and the parings of the apples that I cooked for sauce made the jelly. Your mother would have thrown the parings to the pigs, and spoiled the children's appetites for supper with the paste. I made them into a pretty dish for the table, and I guess they found a ready market."

"Please make some more; they are so good, mamma," said Nora. But do you wonder that Mrs. Rolf did not feel, then, as if she would?

"Well, I hope you will have something more interesting than your neighbors to talk about when I come home again," was the parting salute of her husband, as he put on his hat and left for business.

Mrs. Rolf went about her work, realizing fully how tired she was. She had been working hard all day, and weak, had so hungered for some token of her husband's affection, that when he departed without a single tender word, she was disappointed and cast down. Perhaps he did not love her.

She washed up her supper dishes, set her bread for to-morrow's baking, covered her jar of sauce carefully and carried it down cellar, and brought up her potatoes and pared them for breakfast. It seemed as if a hand of iron compressed her head, it ached so; and her heart throbbed so painfully that many times her hands pressed her side, as if to still its beating. A good cry might have relieved her somehow, but she was too considerate for her children to indulge herself in that way. There is nothing more depressing to the spirits of the little ones than to see mother cry.

They were all bathed and prepared for bed, when, observing, thoughtful little Nora said, "We do not need any song to-night, mamma." But Robbie, two years younger, declared that he could not sleep at all unless mamma sang a song. So she sang the accustomed song, Robbie's favorite, and Harry's lullaby, while sympathetic Nora sat by her side with an arm around her neck. That warm little arm was far more comforting to the lonely mother than the finest laces could ever have been. Then the children, all sweet and good tempered, were put into their well-washed beds, and Mrs. Rolf sat in a room near them to sew until her husband came home. Now she could think; but her thoughts were not pleasant. She did not fear her husband would come home drunk to abuse her with blows and curses, but it seemed as if his cold unloving ways were almost as hard to bear. She understood now why Mrs. Long loved and lived with her husband, notwithstanding his drunken ill usage. A few days before he had beaten her dreadfully, but she said to her sympathetic friend, "It was not John that did it, it was whisky. He never says a cross word to me when not in drink, but says I am the woman in all the world for him. So I'll never leave him, for perhaps he will reform. If there were no saloons he would bring me fewer blows and more money."

"I could almost bear the blows for the sake of the love," thought Mrs. Rolf; and now the stitches were lost in a flood of tears.

A little praise, a little appreciation of her work, a tender word, would be grateful to her as a night's rest, but comes not.

A Fellow Feeling.

A gentleman was arraigned before an Arkansas Justice on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He had entered a store, pretending to be a customer, but proved to be a thief.

"Your name is Jim Lickmore?" said the Justice.

"Yes, sir."

"And you are charged with a crime that merits a long term in the penitentiary?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you are guilty of the crime?"

"I am, sir."

"And you ask for no mercy?"

"No, sir."

"You have had a great deal of trouble within the last two years?"

"Yes, sir, I have."

"You have often wished that you were dead?"

"I have, please your Honor."

"You wanted to steal money enough to take you away from Arkansas?"

"You are right, Judge."

"If a man had stepped up and shot you just as you entered the store you would have said, 'Thank you, sir?'"

"Yes, sir, I would. But, Judge, how did you find out so much about me?"

"Some time ago," said the Judge, with a solemn air, "I was divorced from my wife. Shortly afterwards you married her. The result is conclusive. I discharge you. Here, take this fifty dollar bill. You have suffered enough."—Arkansas Traveler.

Plantation Philosophy.

What is on de outside of a man is de straw, but what is on de inside is de grain.

It's ebbery nigger's duty ter be baptised. Even ef he ain't got de faith, de water'll do him good.

Don't judge by de actions. A possum is a mighty big hypocrit, but he's powerful good meat.

Dar can be sich a thing as too much economy. It's de little dose of camomel dat salivates a man.

My idea ob de better worl' is whar dar is a election goin' on all de time, cas den de white folks is allers perlight.

It may be possible for a man what doan like music ter get ter heben, but dinged if I can see what business he'll hab up dar.

Tears is sometimes caused from a bardenin' ob de heart as well as softness. I've cried like a chile when I've been real mad.

The difference between flush and hard times is illustrated by the remark of a mechanic who says, "When work and money are plenty, I go into the market and sing out, 'Send this roast up to the house!' But when work and money are scarce, I sneak in with a basket and say, 'Have you got any liver?'"

A simple and inexpensive jail is that belonging to Naples County, Idaho. It is a hole in the ground ten feet deep, into which the prisoner is dropped, and out of which he cannot climb, as the hole is larger at the bottom than the top. When a prisoner is wanted, the guards drop a line and pull him up on it.

Linda's Half a Chance.

"Ralph, the fifteen-minute bell is ringing."

"Not going to school to-day."

His mother said nothing more. How could she send a boy to school who had not had half a breakfast, and who was out at elbows and knees and feet. But the father, who, more sober than usual, lounged around the door, roused himself at the boy's words.

"Not going to school, eh? How long since you came to be your own master? If that's the way you appreciate your privileges, it's high time you lost them. Might as well stop school anyway; you don't learn anything."

"Reckon I could if I had half a chance," said the boy, looking disconsolately at his legs.

"I haven't another patch left to mend your clothes with," said his mother sadly.

"Oh, it isn't your fault; no one blames you, mother," said Ralph quickly.

"I suppose that means that I am to blame for everything that oughtn't to be. A boy of thirteen ought to be able to earn himself a suit of clothes, to say nothing of his bread and butter."

"Lots of good it would do me to earn anything," muttered Ralph, sulkily. Usually he would not have dared to say so much in his father's presence, but this morning he hardly cared what he did or what might follow. Usually, too, he would have paid dearly for such a speech, but now Mr. Allen only said:

"You're an impudent young rascal, but seeing I haven't done as well by you as I might, I'll make a bargain with you. Every cent you can earn you may have, but not a bit to eat nor a rag to wear, besides. Do you understand? Now be off, and see what you are worth."

"All right," answered Ralph, picking up his ragged hat.

"You won't go out of town?" said his mother anxiously, as he passed out.

"No, not without letting you know," he answered from outside the gate. From simple force of habit, and without any definite purpose, he took the road leading to the school house, and found himself at the door just as the noisy troop were entering. "Might as well go in, too," he said to himself, and he did. But his books remained unopened, and when his class was called he sat still in his seat. His teacher was sure from his looks that he was sick or in trouble, and knowing something of his home life, thought best to pay no attention at the time. At recess, however, she went and sat down beside him.

"No lessons to-day, Ralph?" she asked pleasantly.

"Not coming to school any more."

"Why, how is that?"

"Got to earn my own living."

"Oh, work is it; well, that's not a bad excuse for leaving school. What are you going to do?"

"That's what I've got to find out. Don't know yet."

"Then the first thing is, what can you do?"

"Not much of anything; never had half a chance to learn," and he looked enviously at Louis Hatten, who was passing through the room—a boy of his own age, well-dressed and well-fed, well-furnished with all a school-boy could ask. Miss Lee followed the direction of his glance.

"Why, Ralph," she said, "I think you have a better chance than Louis for making a man of yourself."

"Don't see how that can be."

"Can you swim?" Ralph looked up very much astonished. He was an expert swimmer, but he did not see how that would help him in trying to make something of himself.

"I can that," he answered emphatically.

"Did you learn by having some one hold on to you all the time, keeping you out of deep water?"

"Guess a fellow wouldn't learn much that way. Had to go it myself."

"Then why isn't it better to 'go it yourself' in other things? Haven't you a better chance than a boy who has everything done for him, who is always, as far as possible, kept out of danger—never allowed to make effort enough in any direction to tire him?"

"Never thought of that before," said Ralph.

And while he thought of it his teacher thought of something else.

"Will you carry a note to Mr. Scott for me?" she asked.

"Yes'm," answered Ralph, promptly. He had carried notes before and had a pleasant remembrance of bright nickels and brighter dimes that found their way into his pocket on these occasions. So the note was written and carried, and while Mr. Scott read it, Ralph looked earnestly out of the window at a huge pile of coal on the sidewalk.

"Young man," said the trustee suddenly, making Ralph start, "do you know the contents of this note?"

"No, sir," said Ralph, truthfully.

"Your teacher tells me you are in want of work and recommends you for the vacant place of janitor in the Holly street building. Do you think you could manage to keep those rooms swept and dusted, and to have them warm by school time, and see that everything is in order at night?"

"I'd like to try," said Ralph.

"And to be responsible for everything that is broken or stolen?" The boy's face lengthened.

"S'pose there's keys?"

"Plenty of them."

"Reckon if I locked up and left everything straight and burglar broke in, it wouldn't be any of my lookout."

"How long do you suppose you will stick to it?"

"Likely till I find better work."

"Well, sir, we'll try you. Miss Lee offers to give you directions," and he hurriedly scratched off a reply. Ralph took it, and hesitating a little, asked the question of all importance to him:

"How much will I get?"

"Two dollars a week through the fall and winter, and one through the warm weather. Does that suit you?"

"Yes, sir, much obliged. How of ten will I get paid?"

"We generally pay once a month, but if you need the money, we can let you have it every Saturday for a while."

"Thank ye," said Ralph; but there were live days before Saturday, and he was already hungry.

"Want your coal put somewhere?" he asked, after a moment's pause.

"Well, it is rather out of place on the sidewalk. Would you like the job?"

"Yes, sir, I would that."

"Very well, deliver your note, and then come back and go to work," and the boy lost no time.

As he handed the answer to Miss Lee he told her of the waiting coal pile.

"That's a good beginning," she said, smiling, "and this will do for starting capital," and she laid in his hand, not a nickel, not a dime, but a shining half-dollar. "And this," she continued, covering the coin with a dainty card, "is a motto to help you along."

On the card Ralph read "God helps the man who helps himself." The boy looked rather than spoke his thanks, but he did say, "If I'm ever of any account, Miss Lee, it will all be owing to you."

A loaf of brown bread and a slice of cheese took ten cents from the precious half-dollar, but it gave the boy strength to handle a shovel well, and when he went to the school house to learn his new round of duty, another half-dollar jingled with the four dimes in his pocket. "How rich he felt as he went down the street to lay out a part of his wealth for the table at home. A peck of corn meal, a good sized soup bone, another loaf of bread, larger, this time, and a pint of milk in a live-cent bucket. A mush and milk for supper, bread and soup for dinner to-morrow. Hurrah! Believe I have a chance after all."

That was the beginning. Ralph is a man, now, prosperous and respected. His mother, hopeful and happy, looks after the pleasant home, of her son's providing; his father, quiet and sober, makes the little garden spot bring forth its best for the always well-lit table, and over the mantle in Ralph's own room hangs in a tasteful frame the motto that has directed and encouraged his efforts since the morning when he discovered wherein lay his chance for making a man of himself.

The wife of an American diplomat was famous for calling on all celebrities she ever came near, and being in Florence, she determined to interview Guido, the novelist, although her friends cautioned her that Onida was unfriendly and rude to all Americans. She called, and the novelist soon took occasion to remark—"I must tell you that I exceedingly dislike Americans."

"I am much surprised at that," said the lady; "for they are about the only people who read your nasty books!"

The New Hampshire Senatorship is as complicated as ever. Rollins has retired from the field and Secretary Chandler comes serenely to the front, as everybody supposed would be the case; but he is still a long way from an election. Curious combinations are formed in politics. Two years ago Chandler prevented Rollins from being elected Senator, by joining with the Democrats to postpone the election to this year, in spite of the decision of the Supreme Court that the legislature of two years ago was the one legally entitled to choose a United States Senator. Now he and Rollins are like twin brothers, and the "veteran salt" of the navy bobs up as Rollins's political heir as naturally as if he had never failed to slaughter his friend. We trust that the Old Granite State will repudiate both of them and put in some clean man. Rollins retires with his scalping knife drawn to go for Senator Blair two years hence.

Opposition to a Monopoly.

It is not likely that it will be always smooth sailing for that gigantic monopoly known as the Bell Telephone Company. Thus far, thanks to the mint of money they have had at their command, and the able lawyers they have employed, they have been almost uniformly successful in beating all competitors in the courts. There has lately, however, come to the front a new and powerful rival. In a circular issued by the United States Telephone Company, it is claimed that James W. McDonough of Chicago, in 1867 invented and constructed a telephone receiver; in 1871 made a drawing of a transmitter and receiver and of a battery in circuit, for the transmission of speech through wires by means of electricity; in May, 1875, constructed and operated a telephone on this principle, and, having improved and perfected his apparatus, on the 10th of April, 1876, filed his application in the United States patent office for a patent on his invention, which he styled a "telegraph" or far-speaker. The circular further states that, on January 15, 1877, Mr. Bell filed his application, and fifteen days later a patent was granted to him, without being put in interference with McDonough, whose application had been on file over nine months, but that after the issue of Bell's patent, an interference between Bell and McDonough was declared. Recently, according to the company's statement, the patent office has allowed Mr. McDonough to divide his case, and has issued to him four patents, covering the principles controlling the telephones at present operated. The company further states that it also owns the patents of George W. Coy and Chas. E. Buell of New Haven, Conn., for the telephone exchange system, and those of Connolly and McTigue of Pennsylvania, for automatic telephone exchange mechanism, by which, it is declared any subscriber can connect himself automatically with any other, and converse privately at will. On the strength of these patents and claims the United States Telephone Manufacturing Company states that it has brought suits in Massachusetts and New York against exchanges operating under licenses from the Bell company for infringement, and the circular in question warns all exchanges that they are "doing business under the precarious tenure of rights granted by virtue of the patents of Mr. Bell, who is not the original inventor of the doubtful guarantees given by the American Bell Telephone Company."

A Petticoat Government.

Secretary Chandler's famous order designating where the wives, sweethearts, etc., of our naval officers shall live has created much discussion in naval circles which has led to the discovery that Uncle Sam's brilliant navy is controlled principally by the female attaches. In other words, the admiral, commodore or captain nominally commands the fleet, but as the wife commands the admiral, commodore or captain, why as a natural deduction the wife commands the fleet. Such being the state of affairs it is said to be almost impossible to get one of Uncle Sam's tubs to sea, for any length of time. On the foreign stations in particular vessels which should have been cruising have been for months in the port which was the temporary residence of the wives of the officers attached to them. For example, Yokohama is the headquarters of the Asiatic squadron and that place is the temporary residence of nearly a dozen ladies whose husbands are officers attached to the squadron. No sooner does a vessel return from a cruise than every married officer hurries on shore to join his wife and the vessel is left in charge of a junior officer—frequently an ensign or a midshipman. Under such circumstances it cannot be expected that there will be any undue haste in sailing on a cruise or any disposition shown except to make the cruise, once begun, as short as practicable. The South Atlantic squadron comprises only two vessels, and they are required to cruise not only along the whole South American coast, but across to the coast of Africa and up to Madagascar. The headquarters of the squadron are at Rio Janeiro, which is the temporary residence of several ladies whose husbands are attached to the squadron. It is understood that for months the Brooklyn—flag-ship of the squadron—lay in the harbor of Rio when she should have been cruising. The wife of the admiral lived there, but as soon as he was ordered to the Asiatic squadron she started on a long journey—her destination being Yokohama. All this is bad, but we see no way for Secretary Chandler to remedy the matter entirely except to order every naval officer above the rank of ensign to get a divorce at once.

On the other hand why not let the gallant gold-laced gentlemen remain on shore. The principle of our navy for the last few years at least, has been to grace the balls, dances, etc., of our butterfies of fashion, and in that way they are perhaps as usefully engaged as in cruising up and down a foreign coast and thereby displaying to other nations our weakness and inefficiency. Our advice to the veteran tar who commands at the navy department would be to keep his hand off as quiet as possible lest somebody might steal it some dark night. There is one consolation though; whoever stole it would have no use for it and would soon return it and apologize.

The President's Western Trip.

Gen. Howard, commanding the department of the Platte, has completed arrangements for President Arthur's trip to the Yellowstone National Park. President Arthur and party will leave the Union Pacific at Rawlins, Wyo., and proceed by wagon to Fort Washakie, thence by the route followed by Gen. Sheridan last year to the park. The party will have an escort and travel part of the way by relays and the other part of the journey by mounts and pack mules. There is telegraphic communication to Washakie, and from there to the park constant communication will be kept up by cowboys. Relays have already been distributed along the route and temporary depots established.

A Disgraceful Affair.

The San Francisco Bulletin of June 28, has the following:
HARTFORD, Conn., June 27th.—Rev. Dr. Parker of the Congregational Church attempted to baptize a number of children in the South Baptist Church, presided over by Rev. Mr. Everts. The latter, with his deacons, could not induce Parker to leave peaceably. Everts then entered the baptistry and engaged in a bitter fight with Parker, both being in the water. They tore each other's hair and clothes, and it was with the greatest difficulty that they could be torn from each other's embrace, though both were unconscious and nearly drowned.

The Brooklyn Bridge Builder Makes a Change in Position.

Roebling has tendered his resignation as chief engineer of the East river bridge. It was accepted, and he was appointed consulting engineer without salary. His chief assistant, Mr. Martin, was appointed chief engineer and superintendent of the bridge. The total amount of money received for the building of the bridge up to the 1st of this month was $14,999,350, and the expenditures were $14,941,508.

The record of the dead and wounded consequent upon the celebration of the Fourth in Chicago is thirty-eight casualties, all told, including three deaths, five fatally wounded, twenty-three more or less maimed for life, and five slightly injured. The chief instruments of destruction proved to be toy pistols in the hands of children, and small cannons.

A Railway Collision.

THREE PERSONS KILLED AND A NUMBER OF OTHERS INJURED—A TELEGRAPH OPERATOR'S FORTUNATELY THE CAUSE.

At 5:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, a terrible collision occurred between a passenger train and a construction train on the New York and New England Railroad, near Plainville, Conn. Both trains were running at full speed, the passenger on schedule time and the construction at twenty miles an hour. Coming round a curve the two trains met. The engineer and fireman of the construction jumped out and escaped, but the engineer of the passenger, George Knickerbocker, of Bristol, stuck to his post, reversed his engine and blew for the brakes, while his fireman jumped for his life. It was too late to avoid the collision, however, and the trains came together with a terrible crash. They were crushed, battered and derailed, while engineer Knickerbocker was thrown down the embankment and instantly killed. The cause of the accident was the carelessness of the telegraph operator at Plainville, who forgot to inform the conductor of the passenger train of the presence of the construction train. The shock was terrific and a number of cars were derailed. Chas. W. Church, Adams Express messenger, received injuries which will probably prove fatal. Charles Griswold, of Waterbury, was on the way to view the accident at Clayton's, which occurred Sunday. He was thrown out with such force as to make the clean circuit of the telegraph wires and fifty feet into an adjacent lot, where he landed on his head and was instantly killed. Conductor Jacobs was thrown to the rear of the car and badly bruised, while many passengers were badly bruised and shaken up.

A Shower in Canada.

FIFTY LIVES LOST.

A dispatch from London, Ontario, says: "About two o'clock Wednesday morning the school bell in the village of Pateraville, a suburb of London, began to clang an alarm, which in due time was taken up by the city bells. The morning was calm and still after the storm, so that citizens, when aroused by the bells, heard the air filled with shrieks and cries, mingled with the sounds of a vigorous chopping with axes. The thriving suburb named, comprising about sixteen hundred souls, had been overwhelmed with a torrent caused by a tremendous cloud burst some dozen miles up the country. The water rolled down in one relentless wave, raising the river twelve feet above ordinary flood mark and destroying about 200 dwellings. The village presents a picture of sickening ruin, brick houses being leveled and frame ones either carried bodily down stream or tumbled over and over and left in inextricable confusion. The people took refuge on the roofs of buildings that remained standing, until relieved by men with boats, which work occupied six hours. Men who left home to rouse the neighbors found themselves borne away on the crest of the flood, while their houses and little ones were carried off by the same mad current. One house floated down with lights burning inside and inhabited by a lady, Miss Wright. It struck the railway bridge and the lady was taken out a raving maniac. A cradle passed down amid a confusion of furniture containing a baby which was dead. It is supposed that there is a great loss of life, as fifty persons remain unaccounted for.

A wonderful thing has happened. The town of Warwick has elected a Senator without a party fight, something heretofore unknown in the history of that fighting town. Henry L. Greene was chosen without opposition to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Benedict Lapham.

THE WILD WEST.

Scenes and Incidents of Border Life at Aquidneck Park.

Buffalo Bill and his associate, Dr. Carver, with their buffaloes, Indians, cowboys, etc., will give an unique exhibition at Aquidneck Park on Tuesday next at 3 p. m. A Boston Exchange gives the following account of the show at Beacon Park last week:
The programme opened with a grand introductory march about the track introducing the Deadwood coach, an antique arrangement which has done good service over the dangerous route, before the day of telegraph or railroad, Indians, squaws, ponies, cowboys, Mexicans, buffaloes, elk, deer, Texas steers, with Buffalo Bill, Dr. W. W. Carver, Maj. Frank North, Tom Wilson, George Clough, and others. This pageant was followed by a bare back pony race, the Omaha, Sioux and Pawnee Indians. The "pony express" showing the method of carrying dispatches previous to the introduction of the telegraph was an exciting bit of reckless riding. The attack upon the "Deadwood Mail Coach" by the Indians and its rescue by the scouts and cowboys led by Hon. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) and Dr. W. F. Carver (The Evil Spirit) was an exciting representation of plain life in the days of '49. A hundred yard race between a Indian and a horse was an interesting feature, and the shooting of Capt. A. H. Bogardus was as usual excellent. The shooting of glass balls and clay pigeons by Buffalo Bill and Dr. Carver on foot and on horseback, was very successful and displayed much skill. Cowboy fun, introducing bucking and kicking ponies was amusing in the extreme and the roping, tying and riding of the wild Texas steers and buffalo introduced some excellent lasso work, and the attempts to ride the steers, which met always with a tumble, elicited much laughter. The entertainment concluded with a grand hunt on the prairie and introduced the method of shooting, capture, etc., of buffalo, elk, deer, wild horses and cattle, and giving a complete view of the exciting scenes of the chase in the "wild West." joined in by the combined forces of white and red men with a battle scene, depicting the capture, torture and death of a scout by the savages, the revenge, recapture of the dead body and victory of the cow-boys and Government scouts.
The closing scene was realistic in the extreme and worked the audience up to a high pitch of excitement as they watched the manoeuvres of the redskins and scouts.

Corcoran Windmills.

The Commercial Advertiser gives the following account of these windmills erected by prominent people in New York and vicinity:

Mr. W. E. Strong has again availed himself of the Corcoran system of water supply. Mr. Strong has had one of the Corcoran mills for many years, and the fact of its erecting another, still larger, to supply his beautiful mansion with water, is sufficient proof of its efficiency. The pumping power is more than 25 gallons per minute, and the storage capacity some 15,000 gallons. The whole arrangement is one of the most complete, in all its details, of the kind on Rumson Neck. The supply of water is drawn from a large well on the grounds, situated where it is free from any possibility of contamination by drainage. There are two tanks in the water tower, the upper one being high enough to throw water over the dwelling and all other buildings. It will hold 10,000 gallons, and is for the use of the Corcoran family. The overflow leading to the lower tank supplies the coach house, garden, lawn, fountain, etc. The upper tank is connected with five hydrants, and in case of necessity both tanks may be connected automatically by a pressure valve. Messrs. George L. Scott, Edward Knapp, R. L. Holman, Jose D. Navarro, Ehrlig Larmolen, B. H. Rotunbo, C. H. Ward, Mrs. George Oaks and others have also adopted Mr. Corcoran's method of water supply at Rumson Neck.

There are now twelve of these mills in Newport, and among the latest erected is one on Mr. Wetmore's stable, put up under the supervision of Messrs. G. C. Mason & Son; two on Gould Island for E. U. Homans; a large mill for Prof. Agassiz to pump salt water and compress air for his laboratory, a work formerly done by a steam engine. Mr. Corcoran is now erecting a very complete water supply for the magnificent residence of R. G. Dunn, Narragansett Pier, on the point of rocks. The water tower will be placed on the highest part of the grounds and sufficiently elevated to supply the house and all portions of the park, with more water than most city houses can possibly boast of having. The water will be obtained from an artesian well, six inches in diameter and bored through a rock. The well is now 125 feet deep and is still being drilled, it being the intention to continue until the required quantity of water is found, viz: 25 gallons per minute. This work includes one of the handsomest windmills in the State, the tower being antique in design, and built of the stone found in this locality. There will be a handsome observatory on top from which there is a commanding view of this city, Block Island and Point Judith. There has also been a mill erected to supply the house and grounds of J. D. Johnston.

Things are getting mixed in Ohio. Senator Thurman the old war horse of the Democracy is bitterly opposed to Hordly the Democratic nominee for Governor, and Thurman's son, it is said, will take the stump for the Republican candidate. The son of Stephen A. Douglas is a prominent Republican in Illinois.

PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the rectum, and later part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A morbid, like prostration, producing a very disagreeable feeling, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common accompaniment. Blind, bleeding and itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Homan's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the cause affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and affecting a permanent cure, where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain on the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price 50 cents. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Address: The D. B. Homan Molestation Co., Fiqua, Ohio. Sold by John E. Groff, agent, and B. F. Downing, Jr.

The Best Baking Powder.

The best baking powder is made from pure Cream of Tartar, Bicarbonate of Soda, and a small quantity of flour or starch. Frequently other ingredients are used, and serve a purpose in reducing the cost and increasing the profits of the manufacturer.

We give the Government Chemist's analyses of two of the leading baking powders: 1. Have examined samples of "Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder" and "Royal Baking Powder," purchased by myself in this city, and I find they contain: "Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder." Cream of Tartar, Bicarbonate of Soda, Flour.

Available carbonic acid gas 12.61 per cent. equivalent to 116.2 cubic inches of gas per oz. of Powder.

"Royal Baking Powder." Cream of Tartar, Bicarbonate of Soda, Carbonate of Ammonia, Tartaric Acid, Starch.

Available carbonic acid gas 12.40 per cent. equivalent to 116.2 cubic inches of gas per oz. of Powder.

Ammonia gas 0.43 per cent. equivalent to 10.4 cubic inches per oz. of Powder.

Note: The tartaric acid was doubtless introduced as a free acid, but the recently combined with ammonia, and exists in the Powder as a Tartrate of Ammonia.

E. G. LOVE, Ph. D.

New York, January 17th, 1881.
The above analyses indicate a preference for "Cleveland's Superior Baker Powder," and our opinion is that it is the better preparation.—Hall's Journal of Health.

How Long Butter will Keep.

A few years ago while a well in this place was being cleaned, a half-pound of butter was found in the bottom as good and sweet as when first made. How long it had been there no one knew. The present occupant of the premises had been fifteen years on the place, and the pump being in constant use there had been no occasion before to have it cleaned. The butter must have been there all this time, and how long before is not known. The outside was of a pale color than that within, but otherwise there was no change.

It is not unknown to good dairy folks that butter will keep well in cool, pure spring water, and some have taken advantage of the fact to preserve butter in close vessels under the surface. But we think it is not generally known that it would keep so long and in actual contact with the water. It might be of great value whether this hint about preserving butter might not be taken advantage of, so as to imitate a regular plan of preserving butter sweet and fresh, until markets or other circumstances favor good prices. It is one of the weaknesses of the butter business that at some seasons prices are ruinously low, and the usual remedy of putting is not a very good one.

The water of course must be cool and pure. At a high temperature, such as most waters near the surface reach, vegetable organisms grow that would soon communicate decay to any organic matter in the water; but there are many places where a lagoon of the proper condition of pure well-water could readily be constructed.

It may not be out of place here to remark that little hints such as these are continually occurring in almost every one's experience, but only soon to be forgotten. Yet often if the suggestion be listened to and the thread followed up, one might get on the track of some good idea that would rapidly make a fortune. We think that new inventions require much study; but the truth is most of our best discoveries have been by accident.—[Germantown Telegraph.]

Water for Stock.

The farmer who made a single pump furnish water through rubber tubing to the stock in four fields did a very ingenious and wise thing. Animals should be able to obtain drink whenever they feel thirsty. The water then taken has a better effect than if given at convenient intervals by the farmer or his attendants, for in the latter case the animal is very apt to drink more than is really good for him. Then, again, if the attendant is concerned at all about the quantity of water the animal takes, the chances are he will pull him away before the demands of nature have been satisfied. For a small outlay of money, farmers can in a multitude of cases, arrange the water supply of their live stock so that they can drink whenever they feel dry. Such a method is economy in a double sense—in the well being of the stock and in the time of the owner or his help.—[Mirror.]

Wire-worms in Gardens.

A practical gardener says he kills or repels wire-worms with spent gas lime, largely mixed with manure. He procures a wagon-load of the gas lime, and mixes it with three or four times as much strong and short manure, mixed with about an equal quantity of good soil. This is spread late in autumn over the ground and plowed in. The next spring, root or other crops are planted on this ground after it has been thoroughly stirred, and no wire-worms are to be seen. The quality is what would be termed a moderate dressing of the manure; too much gas-lime would injure the crop. Farmers who live near gas-works may easily try this on their fields infested with wire-worms.—[Country Gentleman.]

Fattening Farrow Cows.

Farrow cows that have been milked all winter will fatten very easily if dried before turning out to grass, and a very light ration of corn meal given daily. Where milk can be sold by the quart it will pay to continue the milking until the animal is fattened; but if the milk has to be made into butter it can quite as profitably go into beef and fat. At all events it will pay to thoroughly fatten any cow before selling with present high prices of good beef. It is only beef of poor quality that comes in competition with pressed beef shipped from Chicago.—[Tribune and Farmer.]

A new and serious objection has been found to crows in the fact that they are very destructive to smaller and more useful birds. They eat the eggs and kill the young in their nests. Crows have never been favorites with average farmers, and this will make them less so than ever before.

When squash and melon vines begin to run over the ground, a little fertilizer, wood ashes or fine manure, should be sown between the hills and hedges. These often strike down new roots as they run, and if they are fed at these roots it greatly increases their productivity.

As to washes for fruit trees, a successful grower speaks highly of strong salt soap diluted with a little lime water as the best. Lye is good alone. Dry ashes are recommended for killing the bark louse, throwing the ashes in the top and among the branches of the tree when the foliage and bark are damp with dew or light rain.

Chirlock, called in some localities wild mustard, is one of the worst weeds where spring grain is grown. Its numerous small seeds are oily, and retain their vitality many years. A field once infested will turn up a new supply at plowing for a long time, even after none are allowed to ripen their seeds.

A farmer who claims to have tested the matter says that upon soft ground he can draw two tons with wheels that have a four-inch tire as easily as one ton upon those with a two and a half inch tire. As farmer's wagons are used in crossing meadow lands as much as for any purpose, it will be well to bear this in mind when ordering wheels for farm wagons.

Do not try to milk too rapidly. Many cows, especially young heifers, are injured by the rude grasp of some strong-handed farmer, who takes pride in milking rapidly. When the udder and teats are unusually distended by a large flow of milk, they are tender, and it is possible to rupture some of the milk glands of the passage by attempting to force out the milk faster than the size of the orifice will allow. Milk steadily, and try to keep the flow as nearly continuous as possible. With stripping out the last drop do not put out strength enough to squeeze the juice out of an apple.

String beans can be preserved for use in the winter in this way: Pick, "string" the beans, then cut them in pieces about two inches long, and put them in a brine of the strength used for cucumber pickles—that is, about a cup of salt to a gallon of water; keep in a covered jar. When you wish to use them take them out and wash them; let them stand in cold water for several hours, then scald them; if not fresh after one scalding repeat the operation. The housewife who contributes this hint has tried this successfully year after year, and has never failed to have what appeared like new string beans in mid-winter.

The American Home.

The following from the pen of a New York World contributor is commended to the thoughtful attention of every reader:

The American people are becoming more cosmopolitan in their habits daily. In no part of the world do so many families live in hotels as in this country. Private home-life is sacrificed for show and notoriety. To be seen and talked about has taken precedence of the sanctity of home, pleasure and work. Since the civil war, shoddy, show and splendor, with all the attendant display, has caused even our best society to be venal, hollow and shamelessly indecent. The art of money getting is fast demoralizing all ranks of society, and it is not how it is gotten alone, but the fact is it must be gotten to keep up with the spirit of the times, which has caused so many otherwise worthy men to sacrifice all positions of trust and honor to the Moloch of ambition demanding wealth, position and notoriety.

The conditions of home-life are changing rapidly; instead of the love of home being inculcated in the rising generation of children, they are left to the care of strangers, while the father is struggling with ambitions, perhaps beyond his reach, and the mother, engrossed with her ambition to be recognized in society, not for her social or moral attributes, but as a leader of fashion. Money is squandered to appear to people (who care nothing for you) different from what you know you are.

Home duties are neglected for show. Children grow up without proper principles being instilled in them. Everyone is in a grand race and scramble for wealth, and for what purpose? Only to gratify the insatiable passion for position and display.

And thus the coming generation will come to the surface, making home desolate for the want of a proper appreciation of the real value of living. Ah! the old way is the best—live upon line and precept upon precept; these principles will make better men and a more glorious nation, whereas the present course will eventually destroy all the better qualities of the man and plunge the country into chaos and confusion. Other nations have tried it in times past and gone to the wall. For with wealth comes luxury and luxurious ease and ways, and a gradual breaking down of the barriers, until private worth is swallowed up in plunder, which will finally pull down the entire fabric. Let us hope that this may not be the fate of our glorious Republic.

These are timely words. May many wise minds were the people that in the true home the only safety of the people lies.

Recipes for the Table.

LEMON WHEY.—One pint of boiling milk, half a pint of lemon juice, sugar to taste. Mix and strain.

BOILED TOMATO.—It is browned in the oven, and served with a dressing made of bread crumbs, butter and sage. It makes a good foundation for a plain dinner.

MOUNTAIN DEW PUDDING.—One cupful of rolled crackers, one pint and a half of milk, three eggs, two table-spoonfuls of white sugar, a half-teaspoonful of salt; flavor with nutmeg; serve with sauce.

CHOCOLATE MOSS.—Beat the whites of three or four eggs to a stiff froth, and add half a pound of powdered sugar. Take a quarter-pound cake of Baker's chocolate, dissolve it with boiling water (but make it very thick), and flavor with vanilla. When quite cold, mix it with the frosting, and serve in a glass dish lined with sponge cake.

TOMATOES AND ONIONS.—Skin and slice thin half a dozen tomatoes and three raw onions; mix together. Make a dressing of the beaten yolk of an egg, a salt-spoonful of salt, a pinch of mustard, of pepper and of sugar, two table-spoonfuls of salad oil or thick cream, and one or two table-spoonfuls of sharp vinegar. Beat all together until quite thick, and spread it over the tomatoes and onions, and set on the fire an hour before serving.

BAKED GOOSEBERRY PUDDING.—Take a quart of green gooseberries, clean them from stems, and stew until tender; then rub through a sieve. While hot, add half a pound of white sugar, two table-spoonfuls of sweet butter, some grated lemon-peel, two eggs well beaten, and three table-spoonfuls of sweet milk. Lard a dish with pastry, put in the mixture, and scatter bread crumbs and sugar mixed together all over the top. Bake half an hour.

NUX'S TOAST.—Cut four or five hard-boiled eggs into slices. Put a piece of butter half the size of an egg into a saucepan, and when it begins to bubble add a finely chopped onion. Let the onion cook a little without taking color, then stir in a teaspoonful of flour. Add a cupful of milk, and stir until it becomes smooth; then put in the slices of eggs and let them get hot. Pour it over neatly trimmed slices of hot buttered toast. The sauce must be seasoned to taste with pepper and salt.

CHERRY PUDDING.—Make a crust as baking powder biscuit; roll it out (it is about two-thirds of an inch thick). Stew enough cherries so that when they are spread on the crust they will cover it, and be deep enough to make a good layer of fruit; roll the crust up then, taking care to keep the cherries from falling out. Wrap a cloth around it, sew it loosely with a coarse thread, which is easily pulled out. Allow plenty of room for the crust to rise. Lay this on a plate and set before a steamer. Steam it for an hour and a half.

Fashion Notes.

Hindoo veiling is light, soft and lovely for summer dresses, and for evening toilets in all seasons.

For midsummer, skirts are being prepared of muslin or light nainsook, embroidered in satin stitch combined with broderie anglaise.

A new llama lace of very fine quality is being used for black lace bonnets. This has fine meshes like those of Chantilly, with hand-run figures.

The trimming width of laces for basques is about three inches, while that for aprons and for flounces on skirts varies from three to eight inches in width.

Black Spanish lace costumes are imported with red or yellow satin linings. The bright strawberry red shades are used for these, and are repeated in the bonnet, parasol and fan.

Another novelty is the use of real furs and cones for trimming lace bonnets. These are the genuine pines, with their order preserved, and have been treated in some way that prevents them from decaying.

Those Jerseys made with sewed seams, forming a French back with some pleats in the middle seam, are preferred for slender figures, while those worn in the plain Jersey shape are liked for larger women.

The Spanish guipure laces, with square guipure meshes and thick Spanish do's and scallops, are in keeping with the plain iron grenadines, and there are more costly Spanish laces with hand-run figures and cords of silk.

White stockings are quite discarded; fashions like hose in colors, plain or striped, in silk, filonelle or cotton, according to the elegance of the toilets. Walking-shoes, with flat bows of tulle, are worn in preference to boots.

Black toilets are always worn, as being necessary for many occasions, but since dark stuffs have come up are not the model par excellence. Of course an elegantly made black costume is and will remain genteel and lady like.

Since the Jersey has been deprived of its scant look and improved in shape by American modistes, who have added a collar, cuffs, pleatings at the back, and sometimes a narrow vest, it has become both a popular and a fashionable garment.

HOW WATCHES ARE MADE.
 In a SOLID GOLD WATCH, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of metal is used only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless. In James Ross Patent Gold Watch Cases this WASTE is saved, and solidity and STRENGTH increased by a simple process at one-half the cost. A plate of SOLID gold is soldered on each side of a plate of hard metal composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this the cases, backs, centers, beads, etc., are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and engine turning. These cases have been worn perfectly smooth by use without removing the gold. This is the only case made under this process. Each case is accompanied with a valid guarantee signed by the manufacturer warranting it to wear 20 years. 150,000 of these Cases now carried in the United States and Canada. Largest and Oldest Factory. Established 1854. Ask your Jeweler.

NEWPORT COUNTY NEWS.

PORTSMOUTH.

Town Business.—The regular monthly session of the Town Council and Court of Probate was held at the Town Hall on Monday, the full Board being present. Business was disposed of as follows:

Probate Business.—A certified copy of the last will and testament of the late Samuel Crocker, of Taunton, Mass., presented for probate in this town, where Crocker was largely interested in the Mount Hope coal mines and the Taunton Copper Co.'s works. It was received and referred, with an order of notice in the Newport Mercury.

Council Business.—The matter of a driveway on Providence Island came up by continuance, and it being the opinion of the Council, from the report of the Committee appointed to view the premises and from the representations of the dwellers on the island, that a new driveway is a public necessity and will prove a public benefit, it was voted that such a driveway be laid out, and Messrs. J. Henry Stoddard, Henry C. Anthony and Edward F. Dyer were appointed as a committee to lay it out. The following bills against the town were allowed and ordered paid: Wm. H. Negus, for stone posts to mark the boundaries of the road across Ferry Neck, $32; Gideon Manchester, for three months service as draw-tender at Stone Bridge, $25; Richard W. Albert, for repairs on Stone Bridge, $26 19; Board of State Charities, for board, clothing, &c., of Perry Croucher, Harriet Cook and Susan A. Brownell at the State Farm, $103 40; Wm. Borden, Overseer of the Poor, for assistance rendered to Oliver W. Barker, $8; to Richmond W. Dennis, $10; to Alexander G. Barker, $9; to Deborah Borden, $12; Henry Anthony, for fencing graves in the Town Hall yard agreeably to the vote of the town passed at the annual town meeting, April 4, 1883, $51 49; Overseers of the Poor for expenses of the burial of Hattie Macomber, $5; Henry Anthony, for Council fees, $2 80.

Truancy.—The Rev. Lewis L. Briggs of Providence, supplied the pulpit of the Christian church on Sunday last, the Rev. Gould Anthony of Westport, Mass., was present and assisted in the services. The concert and tea party given by the young people of the Christian society, on Tuesday evening last, was quite well attended, and proved a success. The public schools of this town close at their summer term yesterday.

BLOCK ISLAND.

Success in making hay and success in the excursion business alike require the sun to shine; hence as a natural consequence of the cooler weather of the last two days there has been a great falling off in the number of excursionists brought by the steamers. The Canonians brought hardly a hundred on Tuesday, not many of whom remained at the Island.

A comparison of the number of people at most of the houses with the number here last year at this date shows that there is no great difference in the total; while the smaller houses are fuller this year. The Ocean View has 125, and Surf Cottage, one of the smallest houses here has 10.

On Sunday afternoon the Rev. C. W. Brewster, of Detroit, conducted religious services at the Spring House, Prof. George F. Greene acting as organist.

Mr. P. T. Barum is coming with his family to Block Island, and will stop at the Ocean View. He writes that he will bring his span of horses, his valet and coachman.

JAMESTOWN.

Mr. Benjamin Carr, a son of Isaac Carr, an old resident of this island, died at the State Farm, Providence, on the 6th ult., and the remains were brought here for interment. Mr. Carr, who had entered the Institution for Incurables, was a very promising young man, of very staid and industrious habits. At his death he was 49 years, and a very singular coincidence is, he was buried on his aged father's birthday. The latter reached the advanced age of 81 years, and has kept store on this island over 45 years, and his generous heart has never allowed a neighbor to leave his place when in need.

Rev. Mr. Richardson has arrived for the season.

Ex-Superintendent of Schools of Newport, Thomas H. Clarke, has opened a Sunday school at the North Baptist church, which has a large attendance. School is held every Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The funeral of Benjamin Carr, son of Isaac Carr, was solemnized at the Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, Rev. S. I. Carr officiating. It was the anniversary of Isaac Carr's 51st birth day.

Thursday, the funeral of Capt. William G. Knowles was solemnized at the Baptist church. There was a large attendance, notwithstanding the busy time, and the busy hour of the day. Capt. Knowles had been sick for about six months. Capt. Knowles entered upon a sea faring life when a mere boy. He was first with his uncle Stephen Capt. C. Gardiner.

LITTLE COMPTON.

The regular monthly meeting of the Town Council and Court of Probate was held at the Council room, on the 9th inst., the full board being present. The will of Robert G. Wilbur was admitted to probate. Petition of Lydia Case for allowance was received and referred to next Tuesday.

A correspondent says: Preparations are being made at West Island for the reception of the President, who is expected in a few days. He will hardly get there.

During the past week several fine bass have been caught, and the fishing promises to be fine.

TIVERTON.

Last summer, Rev. Mr. Wightman found a hen on his premises, supposed to have been dropped by a hawk, since which time she laid eighteen eggs and hatched thirteen chickens, of which twelve were pullets. Three of the chickens graduated as table, and the remainder began laying before they were six months old, and have laid to this time 1050 eggs. Truly the Lord cares for the righteous.

The Rev. Dr. Morrison of Milton, Mass., will preach at Memorial chapel in this town to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 4 o'clock.

NEW ENGLAND ITEMS.

RHODE ISLAND.

Mr. Alonso Flint, of the firm of Flint & Co., of Providence, sailed from New York, July 5th, by the steamer Adriatic, for Europe, to forward orders, and to make new selections for the fall trade.

The mill at Wakefield shut down last Saturday night for one week.

The oldest man in South Kingstown is Captain Westcott, who was 90 years old last March. He goes out walking in his garden as briskly as many a young man.

The 8-year-old daughter of John Volois died in Stillwater Tuesday morning, the result of her clothes taking fire from an explosion of a kerosene can.

The examination of James M. Whitford on charge of manslaughter, was concluded at Wickford, Tuesday. The prisoner was found probably guilty of killing Michael Talley, on June 17th last, and was bound over to the August term of the Supreme Court in Washington county, in the sum of $2500.

It is understood that Prof. J. C. Greenough will resign the principalship of the Rhode Island state normal school to accept the presidency of the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst.

MASSACHUSETTS.

A desperate incendiary is under arrest at Attleboro, Mass. He is a negro named James Gilmore, and confesses to the charge of setting fire to the State Workhouse at Bridgewater, burned July 7th, involving a loss of $150,000. He said: "I have carried a match for one year to accomplish it; I shoved a lot of straw up the ventilator flue, and disabled the steam pump, and an glad the place is in ashes; and when I get out of this I will burn this town."

Mr. W. W. Corcoran has asked permission of the family to erect a monument over the grave of the late Bishop Pinkney, who was one of his warmest personal friends.

The Cape Cod Glass Works at Sandwich, which for so many years have been lying idle, have been started by a company who have a specialty in the glass business. It is a new kind of fancy ware. The factory has been put in order, and fire was lighted in the furnace on the 25th ult.

The weavers at the Bourne mill struck work Tuesday morning on account of a change in their wages from day pay to payment by the piece. They claim that it is a reduction, while the management of the mill say it will make no difference and will be fairer in the end, as under the old system strikers received as much as honest workers. The mill makes Canton shawl.

The body of an unknown woman, about 40 years of age and dressed in calico was found in Hughes's Pond, on the Indian Orchard road, in Springfield, Mass., Tuesday morning. It had evidently been there but a short time as the face was only slightly discolored.

CONNECTICUT.

The Hartford creditors of the late Cornelius J. Vanderbilt have been paid in full, with interest, from the proceeds of the recent sale of his residence. There is a surplus of several thousand dollars.

The will of Mrs. James A. Hovey gives to the Old Ladies' Home, in Norwich, Conn., $5,000 after the death of two nieces, who are to have the use of it during life, and the residue of her estate after other bequests are paid. The residue will amount to over $5,000 more. A valuable solitaire diamond is to be sold, and the avails to go to Christ Church for Sunday School books.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Lyman Sleeper, and old citizen of Franklin Falls, N. H., committed suicide the other day by drowning. Despondency, on account of cancerous difficulties, is the supposed cause.

MAINE.

President Chamberlain, of Bowdoin College, has resigned.

I have used Ely's Cream Balm for many years, and experienced great relief. I most cordially recommend it to the best of all the remedies I have tried.—T. B. Jenks, Lawyer, Grand Rapids, Mich. Price 10 cents.

YOU

will never regret sending two 3 cent stamps to pay postage, to A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass., for a copy of Dr. Kaulfmann's great Medical Work: 100 pages, colored illustrations; of great value to every family.

Bradlaugh says he will take his seat in the House of Commons, and giving the difficulty in drawing up plans to get over the difficulty.

Prepared Coke

is well known as an almost pure carbon. It is the easiest kindling, makes the most efficient heat, and is invaluable where a sluggish coal needs quick roasting. Those who have fairly tried it, make many virtues as a summer fuel have always continued to use it. It is broken to stove size and carefully screened, and is always ready to use, and has proved itself an economical fuel in all cases as well as by far the CHEAPEST FUEL IN USE.
